From a generation where most people talk about change but aren't willing to do the work to achieve it, emerges one young man who walks AND he talks it. As a budding multimedia mogul, philanthropist, and activist, CJ "Remon" Johnson is determined to BE the change he desires to see.

While making his rounds on the underground scene as an artist in 2008, Remon noticed the huge gap between deserving, talented artists and the general public. Tired of the negativity and mediocrity being pumped from mainstream media, Remon launched TheUrbanAdvocate.com in February 2009. The site promotes the newest and brightest talent in music, art, style and entertainment, creates a place for businesses and events to be introduced to the uninformed, and gives a spotlight on community organizations, leaders and activists who raise social awareness and consciousness.

In December 2010, Remon joined the cast and crew of the syndicated, award-winning & critically acclaimed broadcast The Vincent Tucker Radio Show as an on-air personality and promotions/media manager. And while working as one of the most sought out videographers in DFW, he remains active in the community including working as co-director of both Register to Speak Out!™ (non-partisan voter registration campaign) and MBK Dallas: Feed the Homeless Drive.
